On 22nd June we will be hosting an event for postgraduate and early career researchers that aims to answer all of your questions about pursuing a career as a historian in academia. Four senior historians will share their experiences and advice, leading sessions on demystifying the REF; employability and interviews; publishing and open access; and public engagement and impact. The afternoon will start with a lunch and there will be time for informal networking alongside the specific sessions.

Speakers will include: Professor Margot Finn (RHS President), Professor Andrew Spicer (RHS Literary Director), Professor Jo Fox and Professor Ludmilla Jordanova.

The event is free and open to all PhD students and post-doctoral researchers but to register please email Dr Rachel Johnson, specifying any dietary requirements: rachel.johnson2@durham.ac.uk by 7th June.
